Generation Y

2002-2003 Evaluation Data

Prepared for Generation YES by the Northwest Regional Educational Laboratory

This report includes data from the following schools:

St. Thomas/St. John SD, Virgin Islands

Addelita Cancryn Junior High School
All Saints Cathedral, Private Schools (St. Thomas/St. John)
Antilles
Bertha C. Boschulte Middle School
Charlotte Amalie High
Ivana Eudora Kean High School, St. Thomas/St. John School District
Julius Sprauve Middle School, St. Thomas/St. John School District
Moravian Schools, Private Schools (St. Thomas/St. John)
Pine Peace School
Prophecy Elementary School, Private Schools (St. Thomas/St. John)
Sts. Peter & Paul High School, Private Schools (St. Thomas/St. John)

Generation Y Evaluation Results

On the following pages you will find a report containing data from the Generation Y classes in your area. Depending on how your Generation Y classes are funded, the data may be from a single school, an entire district or state, or some other grouping of schools. These data have been prepared for you by the Evaluation Program of the Northwest Regional Educational Laboratory (www.nwrel.org/evaluation), as part of the service provided to your schools by Generation YES.

The information in this report comes from several sources, all collected online through the Generation Y web site. The report contains tabulations of results from the following online data collection forms:

- Surveys of participating students at the beginning and end of each class
- Project descriptions completed by participating students during each class
- Reports from Generation Y Coordinating Teachers at the end of each class
- Surveys of Generation Y Partner Teachers at the end of each class

We hope you find this information interesting and useful. Generation Y is aimed at helping you integrate technology in your classrooms, while engaging students in meaningful educational activities that support teachers, other students, administrators, and your community. The data presented here should give you a snapshot of what your students and teachers have been doing in their Generation Y classes and projects, and how well these activities are supporting technology integration and student engagement in your schools.

An additional report summarizing data on Generation Y classes across the nation is also available. By comparing national data to the information from your area, you may be able to notice differences, strengths, or weaknesses in your local schools that are of interest.

Overview of Generation Y

Generation Y is a program which uses partnerships between students and teachers to integrate modern computer technologies into the classroom. The program promotes the effective use of educational technology in schools, develops opportunities for student leadership, and fosters a collaborative, learning community atmosphere in schools. Rather than teaching technology skills to teachers and hoping they will use these skills to improve their students' learning, Generation Y trains students to form working partnerships with teachers in order to improve teaching and learning in their schools. Students become agents of change, assuming responsibility for helping to improve the educational resources available to themselves and their classmates.

GenY students learn technology skills with an emphasis on applying these skills to a real-world problem: helping teachers use technology to deliver more effective lessons. Students and partner teachers learn how telecommunications tools, the Internet, digital imaging and presentation tools, and other technologies can enhance lesson plans and curriculum units. Many Generation Y students and partner teachers also learn about their state academic standards and learning goals, and the process of aligning classroom activities with these goals.

Each GenY student is paired with a partner teacher (or an administrator, librarian, counselor or other educator), who decides what lesson plan, curriculum unit, or other school need will be addressed by a collaborative, technology-enriched curriculum project, which the partner teacher and the GenY student produce together. These projects are then used in the partner teacher's regular classroom, or in the library, administrative offices, etc. Through this model, participating educators receive individualized support as they strengthen their use and integration of new technologies. Students learn technology, communication, collaboration, and project management skills in an authentic, personally meaningful context, and many go on to further extend their skills through advanced school or community service projects.

The program was developed in the Olympia, Washington School District, with a five-year award in 1996 from the U.S. Department of Education's Technology Innovation Challenge Grant program. Numerous state and local grants as well as corporate sponsorships have also supported the development of the instructional model and materials, as well as dissemination of the model to schools outside Olympia. Currently, Generation Y classes are provided through the Generation YES organization to schools nationwide. The program provides a model which can be customized to fit a wide range of grade levels, technology infrastructures, scheduling requirements, interests, and skill levels of participants. In the summer of 2000, the program was awarded "Exemplary" status by the department's Expert Panel on Educational Technology, a distinction given to only two of 134 programs.

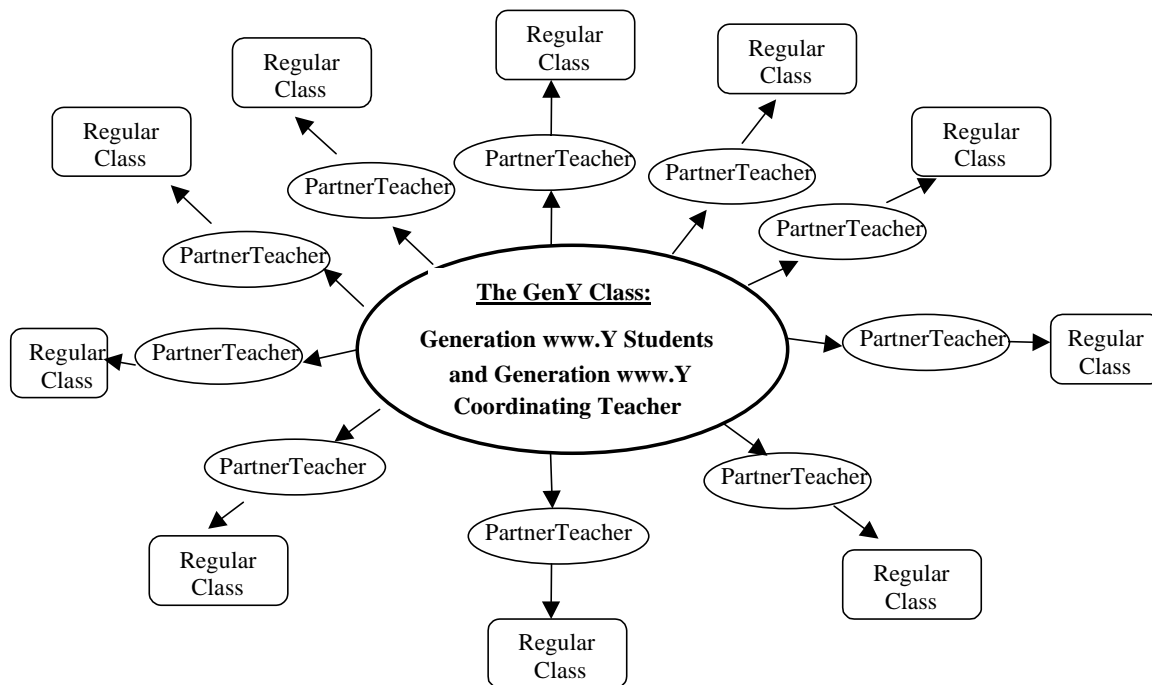

Data from the nationwide project indicate that the program can be an effective alternative for schools wishing to integrate technology into their regular curriculum and increase their use of project-based, student-centered learning practices. The model provides individualized support for educators who wish to increase their use of technology without becoming distracted from the essence of their jobs -- building and delivering effective curriculum units and lesson plans. Generation Y achieves this by giving students experience with educational technology, communication skills, and information literacy, then allowing students to act as responsible partners with their teachers in building new curriculum materials and new teaching and learning practices.

Participating teachers and students have consistently reported that their involvement in Generation Y afforded them an excellent opportunity to improve their basic technology skills, and to develop more advanced abilities to integrate technology in standards-based lessons, projects and curriculum units. Both teachers and students have reported that they gained meaningful, authentic experience developing skills in technology use, collaboration, project management, and information literacy, while contributing to the improvement of their schools. Most have found the Generation Y model to be an effective professional development strategy for teachers, as well as an effective approach to increasing student engagement, student learning, and student leadership.

For those unfamiliar with the program, the term "partner-teacher" is used to refer to the classroom teachers who are each paired with a Generation Y student. These teams collaborate in the production and delivery of a lesson plan or unit, using modern telecommunications technology, to the teacher's class. The term "Generation Y teacher" or "Generation Y coordinating teacher" refers to the teacher who works with all Generation Y students in a school, as they learn skills and knowledge through the course activities and design their projects with partner teachers. The GenY teacher also helps coordinate the relationships between the Generation Y students and their partner teachers, and facilitates the process of developing the collaborative projects. The core of the model is the Generation Y class and the collaborative projects which GenY students and their partner teachers produce for students in the partner teachers' class, as depicted in figure 1.

Generation YES provides fully participating schools with the following:

- A training workshop for the Generation Y teacher(s) and selected students
- Course materials, including curriculum guides, student workbooks, videos, CDs, etc.
- Access to online resources and consultants for the development of student projects
- Access to the searchable database of previous student projects
- Data collection and reporting services to monitor program outcomes

The program includes a series of online surveys and online project documentation facilities for Generation Y teachers, Generation Y students, and the Partner Teachers who work with the Generation Y students. Data from these sources, collected during the 2001-2002 school year, are presented in the tables on the following pages.

Generation Y Coordinating Teacher Reports

At the close of each Generation Y class, teachers are asked to complete an online report that includes questions about the collaborative projects involving their students and partner teachers from their school, the technical and administrative infrastructure in their school, and their ratings of the usefulness of the GenY model, curriculum components, online services, etc. The tables in this section provide a summary of their responses.

Student Outcomes

Just before the class is over, students are prompted to complete a second online survey. Questions include how much practice students gained in various skill areas, what kind of collaborative projects were built, and how students rated their projects on several dimensions. The tables below summarize the outcomes reported by students.

Partner-Teacher Outcomes

At the end of each Generation Y class, participating Partner Teachers are asked to complete a survey about their experiences working with a GenY student on a collaborative, curriculum-building project. Partner teachers are asked about changes in their attitudes and use of technology, the amount of time spent on their projects, and their ratings of a number of dimensions related to the new curriculum units or lesson plans. Their responses are summarized in the tables below, along with a listing of the project titles.

Table 15
Self-Assessed Change In Computer Use by GenY Partner Teachers

How has the frequency of the following changed as a result of your involvement with Generation Y?	More Frequently	Same Frequency	Less Frequently
You use computers to prepare for class, maintain class records, or do other school-related work.	50.0	25.0	25.0
You use computers for personal business, learning, or fun.	50.0	25.0	25.0
